

Case Study

Remer

Remer is an Australian manufacturer of illuminated mirrors, and in this project our Veneer Panels have been used in a number of ways to bring their showroom and reception to life. The floating showroom is bordered on all sides with the Veneer, and it also features on the walls and flooring of selected displays.

A standout feature of the design is the use of geometric patterns on the walls of the reception area. This layout highlights the grain and striking properties of the Veneer, while the illuminated backing further adds to the effect.

The large circular Veneer panel situated above the reception desk keeps with the geometric theme thanks to the illuminated lighting, and also serves to break up the monotony of the ceiling.

The inclusion of the Veneer floor to ceiling beam, further connects the timber elements together, creating a pleasing aesthetic and adding warm tones to the space.
